

If Disaster Struck Your School Today, How Would or Should You Operate?

Presenter: Barbara Thurman, consultant

In any school crisis, school administrators are the first responders. At what point should a crisis be turned over to other agencies? What responsibilities do administrators assume once that happens? Learn how to leverage the power of Rapid Responder school mapping technology with the Incident Command System, a nationally standardized emergency management protocol. Attendees will learn strategies for establishing a chain of command, working with other first responders (police, fire) and finding order in chaos.

All Emergency Response and Crisis Management (ERCM) grants require National Incident Management System (NIMS) compliance. All participants will receive resources and materials in order to take the NIMS compliance exam and receive NIMS certification.
